

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. EARLY AMERICAN
BOOK-PLATES

WITH A BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF THE PRINCIPAL STYLES
AND A NOTE AS TO THE PROMI-NENT ENGRAVERS ♦ ♦ ♦ ♦ ♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

BY CHARLES DEXTER ALLEN

To accompany an Exhibition at

by the desire to encourage the "infant industries" of their country, as well as influenced by that no less important factor—the fashion of the day, used dainty designs engraved on copper by the best engravers of the times.

We, their book-reading successors, hardly know what a book-plate is; for to us the autograph hastily scribbled on the fly-leaf seems a sufficient and fit indication of ownership, and the labor of pasting a bit of paper on the inside cover of each new book for this purpose is left to those who, by reason of their connection with a public library of some kind, are obliged to do it, and to those infatuated mortals who are so fond of books as to actually want to do it, and who, by this further evidence of its applicableness, but add emphasis to the already bestowed title of "book-cranks."

Be it so. This is a fact not to be wondered at nor to be quarreled with, and it has its compensations. To the true book-lover the pasting of the book-plate is a labor of love, a pleasure indeed so acute as not to be called by the name of labor, and to him is left by his utilitarian brother the quiet enjoyment of the artistic beauties of the book-plate,—and the expense of having a design engraved, of satisfactory workmanship and easily perceived adaptiveness.

In addition to bringing together in the present exhibition the best American plates, there are also shown the Album of the Ex-Libris Society of London, and a large collection of English, French, and German plates. The early German examples will repay careful study, as showing the origin of the style of design used to-day by the two foremost engravers of book-plates.

The Engravers.

Nearly all the plates in the accompanying list were made prior to 1830, the few exceptions being in the case of plates of particular interest as to design or ownership.

The principal engravers of the early American plates were Anderson, Bowen, Callender, Dearborn, Doolittle, Furnass, Harris, Hill, Hurd, Johnson, Revere, and Turner, in New England; the Gallaudets, Godwin, Harrison, the Mavericks, and Rollinson, in New York; and Boyd, Dawkins, Kearney, Smithers, Thackaka, Trenchard, and Vallance, in Philadelphia.

ALEXANDER ANDERSON, the first American engraver on wood, made book-plates on both copper and wood, in the Allegorical and Chippendale styles, as well as a few plain labels. 1775-1870.

ABEL BOWEN was the first wood-engraver in Boston; his name appears on plates of Harvard College. 1790-1850.

JOHN BOYD, whose only signed work thus far known is the plate of Samuel Chase, the signer of the Declaration, was working in Philadelphia as late as 1812.

JOSEPH CALLENDER, of Boston, made plates in the Chippendale, Ribbon and Wreath, and Allegorical styles; he was in Boston from 1789 to 1805.

HENRY DAWKINS we do not know much about. He was a prolific producer of book-plates, which were all in the Chippendale style.

NATHANIEL DEARBORN was an associate of Bowen, and an early wood-engraver of Boston. Only one Armorial plate is known that is signed by him.

AMOS DOOLITTLE, a self-taught engraver of Connecticut, was one of the earliest engravers of historical scenes; his book-plates were mostly in the Allegorical style. 1754-1832.

JOHN MASON FURNASS was the nephew of Nathaniel Hurd, of Boston; only one example of his book-plate work is known. It is in the Chippendale style.

ELISHA and EDWARD GALLAUDET were engravers in New-York city early in the present century; one specimen by each of them remains.

ABRAHAM GODWIN was born in New Jersey in 1763; he was fond of engraving, and we have one Pictorial plate by him.

S. HARRIS, who made some Pictorial plates, was in Boston about 1798.

CHARLES P. HARRISON was associated for a time with Maverick.

SAMUEL HILL was a copperplate-engraver in Boston about 1790.

NATHANIEL HURD was the best of the early American engravers; he was located in Boston. 1749 is the earliest date found on any of his plates. He made good plates in all the accepted Armorial styles.

THOMAS JOHNSON was a Boston engraver whose principal work was done in the first half of the last century.

FRANCIS KEARNEY was a pupil of Maverick; removed to Philadelphia soon after the opening of the century.

PETER RUSHTON MAVERICK came to New-York from England about 1774; he was the most rapid worker, apparently, of all our early engravers of book-plates; he worked principally in the Ribbon and Wreath style, as that was in vogue when he left England; he also made several in the Allegorical, Pictorial, and Plain Armorial styles.

PAUL REVERE, the self-instructed engraver of Boston, made a few plates which are now of great interest to collectors.

WILLIAM ROLLINSON was in New-York toward the end of the last century, and made a good number of plates in the Ribbon and Wreath and Plain Armorial styles.

J. SMITHERS settled in Philadelphia, and made a few plates of moderate merit, in the Chippendale style.

JAMES THACKAKA was a partner of Vallance ; we know but one example of his work upon book-plates.

JAMES TRENCHARD was born in New Jersey in 1746 ; only one example of his book-plate work is known ; it is in the Chippendale style.

JAMES TURNER is one of the early American engravers of whom but little is now known ; three signed examples of his work are preserved.

JOHN VALLANCE, who was associated with Thackaka, made one book-plate which has his name upon it ; it is in the Ribbon and Wreath style.

Of present-day designers and engravers of book-plates, the exhibit presents the work of Edwin Davis French, George Wharton Edwards, D. McN. Stauffer, George R. Halm, and E. I. Stevenson, of New-York city ; Edmund H. Garrett, of Winchester, Mass. ; W. F. Hopson, of New Haven, Conn. ; Howard Sill, of Washington ; Howard Pyle, of Wilmington, Del. ; Dr. H. C. Eno, of Saugatuck, Conn. ; Edwin A. Abbey and C. W. Sherborn, of England ; Paul Avril, of Paris ; and of Henry Sandham, Sidney L. Smith, George M. White, J. Wagrez, M. T. Callahan, George Moore, G. J. Van Tiffele, and A. F. Jaccaci.

The Classification.

The early American book-plates are rather difficult to classify in a wholly satisfactory manner. There was no great body of engravers here, as there was in England, working in the prevailing style of book-plate design, but only a handful of self-taught engravers on copper, each one of whom adopted the general style he or his customer preferred, and added such features as seemed desirable from his artistic standpoint, or as the exigencies of the work demanded. The styles had no certain period of popularity with our forefathers as they had in England, and it is impossible to give any exact dates of their adoption and rejection.

While the English plates furnished the models of our early examples, our engravers did not follow the changes in style closely, for manifest reasons: the uncertain and slow communication with the older country, the slow progress of affairs, and the content of their customers with what was given them.

So then in the following list it must be understood that the writer is not presuming to speak ex cathedra, but is giving the classification as nearly as it can be made to accord with the accepted types of the different styles named. The nomenclature used is that of the Hon. J. Leicester Warren (Lord de Tabley) in his authoritative work on English plates.

Early English.

The EARLY ENGLISH plates are characterized by the mantling which usually envelops the shield of arms. These are the earliest classified examples:

Carmichael, William	Dudley, Joseph. 1754
Carroll, Charles, of the	Dummer, Jer.—Anglus
Inner Temple	Americanus

	Penn, Thomas
Lloyd, John Nelson	Penn, William
Minot, S.

Jacobeau.

The JACOBEOAN plates were in use in England from about 1700 to about 1745. These plates are very handsome in design; they are staid and sedate in their bearing. Among their characteristics may be mentioned the exact coincidence of the two sides of the shield, the diapered or cross-hatched background, and the often-present scallop-shell at the base of the shield.

Crest Only.

A great many book-plates are found which give the crest alone, without the shield of arms. These often give the motto as well as the name of the owner, and are the final class of wholly Armorial plates.

Allegorical.

In the ALLEGORICAL plates heraldry is often introduced, but the principal feature of the design is the emblematical: these plates are naturally adapted to the use of libraries and institutions of learning.

Pictorial.

The PICTORIAL plates include those which give a little landscape, or a bit of water, or some more practical picture, either as an adjunct to the arms, or as the sole motif of the design.

Those Armorial plates which properly belong under the other classes, and which introduce a few trifling Pictorial features, are not classed as Pictorial plates; to be such properly the Pictorial feature must be the principal or the prominent one.

Literary.

We class as LITERARY plates those whose design is clearly meant to indicate that the owner of the books in which they are found was specially fond of them. This class includes representations of the interiors of libraries, piles of books in conventional manner or in professional disorder, shelves of books, and the plates of libraries which use literary accessories in their design.

Portrait.

The PORTRAIT plates, while very rare in this country, deserve a word of commendation. In England, and in Germany particularly, these plates are found in goodly numbers among the older specimens. They preserve the features of the owner of the books, and by appearing in the cover of every volume are a certain means of identification.

Franklin Institute. Smith, C. A.

Military.

The MILITARY plates are, as their name proclaims, those which have some representation of the munitions of war within the design. Plates of this style were used a little after the War of 1812, but they never became common among those who would naturally use them.

Ladies' Plates.

The LADIES' plates are not so many in number as we could wish. Heraldically they differ from those of the men in a few details. Heraldic plates were not used to any extent in this country, and only one of those now known is correct in its heraldic arrangements.

Plates of Societies, Libraries, and Colleges.

This list of institutions using book-plates is given, as it may prove useful to the collector for reference. The styles vary largely, nearly all the classes already described being represented. Many of the items have been given previously under their proper class as to style, but are brought together here for convenience in reference.
